The Stationers' Company Warrants, Winners for 2019

The Stationers' Warrant is now in its fourth successful year and has been developed to recognise excellence within our industries. It was originally introduced by Past Master Helen Esmonde and takes us back to our roots as a Livery Company in recognising and promoting excellent products and services.

We have since awarded over 30 Company Warrants and is constantly developing year on year. Winning entries have the honour of using the Company Warrant on their product or promoting their service, which has proved a real positive selling point.

As our market places have changed, The Stationers' Warrants has also witnessed changes by seeing not only traditional products such as pens and notebooks but also services that are unique and very relevant to our industry.

Sammy Bartley, newly appointed Chairman of the Warrants Committee commented "this year has seen a huge interest from companies outside of the Stationers' Company but who have a creditable status within the industries the Company represents". The committee met regularly to develop the scheme and to also judge this year's applications and were delighted to award four new Warrants for 2019.

The new Stationers' Warrants for 2019

- Brown Fox for their fine stationery range
- Collins for its wool / leather bound diary
- Durable for their RFID credit card wallet
- Manuscript Pen Company for its ML1856 fountain pen

The companies that have extended the warrant from previous years where the Judging panel saw further innovation and development of the products are as follows:

- EO Group for the Office Power Dealer network programme
- Gopak for Ultralight Staging
- Victor Stationery for the Rhino Notebook
- Office Club for the Cool Earth Paper.

The judging for the 2020 Stationers warrant will commence in March 2019, with Sammy Bartley as Chairman.
